✓ As our American Seamen have been much in evidence of late as men, our President and Bishop, the Rt. Rev. Henry C. Potter, D. D., LL. D., says on this subject under date of November 8, 1898.

“A great Naval Commander having been congratulated, recently, upon a naval victory, disclaimed, with a fine modesty, the honor that was given him and said, in substance: ‘It was the men behind the guns who had made it possible.’ The words revealed rare penetration, as well as rare modesty. Not armored ships, nor brilliant tactics, not personal heroism in a Commander make great naval achievements, unless there be manhood, in its highest qualities, in the men who serve.

And what is the foundation of manhood,—the best and noblest,—but character? and what, in turn, makes character, but high ideals of duty? and whence do these come so surely and so inspiringly as from the religion of Jesus Christ?

It is with such ideals that the Church Missionary Society to Seamen is striving to touch the lives of our men on shipboard. There could be no work better worth doing, and I am very sure that Christian people will be glad to help them do it.”

HENRY C. POTTER.

Communication from Captain A. T. Mahan,
U. S. Navy, (retired).

The general missionary work of the Church has long and naturally been divided under two chief heads—Domestic and Foreign Missions ; but, as is the case in matters secular, so in this sacred duty, that space of the globe's surface which unites the two great sub-divisions, at the same time that it constitutes the boundary separating the one from the other,—the sea,—has been overlooked by the Church at large as a field for missions. Properly, one would say, considering the vast number of persons now daily embarked upon the deep, and their dependence upon the conscientious fidelity of seamen, the sea should form, in the consciousness of the Church, a third special department, additional to the two great land sub-divisions—the Foreign and the Domestic. That it is not so—that we forget—constitutes the imperative necessity for the existence and activity of the Church Missionary Society to Seamen in the Port of New York. When the Church, as a body, recognizes that the sea as well as the land demands her motherly care, that she should seek to build up the character of seamen by spreading among them the light of the gospel, the need for the separate and highly specialized effort of our Society may cease.

Till then, the Church Missionary Society to Seamen, feeble in resources because the members of the Church, as experience shows, pay little heed to seamen, strives to occupy the ground as best it may. Its chief stations are equipped not only for spiritual service, but for social benefit as well ; for physical comfort and mental cheer, other than in the streets and saloons. They stand on the water-fronts, where, as in all great maritime cities, temptation abounds. They serve seamen, not only by direct ministrations to them, but indirectly, by the elevating effect upon the neighborhoods which is exerted by whatever stands for good, or actively works for it, as the Church and her missionaries do. Help is asked to maintain and to extend this beneficent work. Whose duty is it to aid ?

A. T. MAHAN.

New York, December 13, 1898.

Report of the Board of Managers.

In surveying the recent past the Board of Managers find many and unusual causes for encouragement. Events of significant national importance have made the interests of the sailor the interests of the entire community, to an extent heretofore unequalled in our history. As he has won more friends it is but reasonable to suppose that some of these will seek out those societies that have been looking after his welfare for many years, and will avail themselves of the valuable experience thus acquired to benefit him.

It is to be remembered that the change in the time of presenting our annual report makes this one cover a period somewhat longer than its predecessor, and the careful examination of the Chaplains' statements renders it evident that the results of our work have been exceptionally gratifying and we think will manifest to our friends that the future, which promises to call us into fields so much larger and broader, will find us well equipped to undertake the new duties likely to devolve upon us, provided that those who really want to befriend the sailor will faithfully sustain us.

In consequence of the over-crowded condition of the Society's rooms in Coenties Slip, the Board of Managers has added a communicating room at 37 Front Street, greatly increasing the accommodations.

Two legacies have come to us during the past year; one of $2,766 from the estate of Miss Mary A. Edson, and the other of $1,000 from the estate of the late Hosier Morgan; and how opportune and acceptable they have been can readily be realized when one sees that our expenses have been $23,395.38 and income only $16,423.36, making a deficit of $6,972.02. Thus rendering it necessary for us to exhaust our Temporary Fund of $4,194.17, and leaving us in a financial condition that seriously threatens to cripple us. As we are, in the main, dependent upon the contributions received from the various churches, it is to be hoped that the rectors throughout the city may each be induced to devote one sermon during the coming year to the promotion of the Society's interests.

We would make grateful recognition of the gift of a small library, placed in the Sailors' Home by the late Mrs. P. E. Arcularius, in memory of her father, the late Dr. Samuel M. Valentine.

The Society has to mourn the death of one of its Lay Vice-Presidents, the late Mr. E. M. Duncan, who was an officer in it for fifty-three years. We have had no more faithful or interested friend and co-worker, and his memory will be long and tenderly cherished by his associates. Of the Honorary Members of our Board we have lost two. Mr. F. H. Trowbridge and Mr. Charles P. Burdett. The former was elected in 1845 and the latter in 1849, so that each had given the Society about half a century of devotion, ever keeping its welfare at heart even unto the end. Such records are most inspiring.

We want to call especial attention to one particular phase of our work which is now of more than ordinary interest, namely :

CO-OPERATION FOR IMPROVED LEGISLATION.

Co-operation with other New York societies which labor for the benefit of seamen has been continued by your Board, particularly with a view to needed legislation. The member of our Executive Committee, to whom was assigned the duty of conferring with other bodies and of presenting the needs of seamen before the Congressional Committee at Washington, was also appointed by the "Joint Conference" to represent the several societies. The Maritime Association of New York and the Committee on Commerce of the U. S. Senate gave our representative a full and friendly hearing, and our recommendations were embodied in the unanimous report of that Committee, which, in the form of Senate Bill No. 95, received the unanimous vote of the Senate. It reached the House of Representatives too late in the last session for final action, but it is hoped that it may become a law during the session now in progress.

The chief amendments to existing statutes contained in that Bill may be summarized as follows :

1. The abolition of imprisonment as a penalty for desertion, in home ports.
2. Vesting discretionary power in courts as to penalties for desertion and other offences in foreign ports.
3. The abolition of all forms of corporal punishment and the better protection of seamen from personal assaults by officers of vessels.
4. Better accommodation in respect of space, ventilation, warm room and clothing.
5. Invalidating agreements by seamen to forfeit statutory rights as to payment of wages in foreign ports, provisions, water, etc.
6. The improved minimum scale of provisions as to quantity, quality ; fresh food and water, fruits and meats, to be had when obtainable.
7. Requiring surveys as to seaworthiness of vessels and of provisions under conditions more favorable to safety and health of seamen and requiring vacancies to be filled by seamen of like grade.

8. Protection and employment of seamen discharged in foreign ports and shipment home.
9. Greater consideration given to seamen in the matter of evidence and testimony in Court and better supervision by U. S. Consuls.
10. Better protection in the matter of allotments, advance wages, and fees for obtaining employment as seamen.
11. Making many of the above provisions applicable to FOREIGN VESSELS as well as to those of the United States.

Other provisions will now be needed in view of the proposed retirement of American Consuls from newly acquired territory. The aid heretofore given by such officials to discharged and destitute seamen under existing statutes, should be continued by other officials in the ports of Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. There is still much work to be done in securing better enforcement of existing laws.

Fortunately President McKinley, in his annual message to the Congress now in session, recognizes this necessity, and commends to its careful attention the subject of "providing better protection for seamen."

The friendly co-operation of the American Seamen's Friend Society, the New York Port Society, the Social Reform Club and other friendly organizations is highly appreciated and cordially recognized.

We have summarized in a table accompanying and forming part of this report, the statistics of our work, and we sincerely trust that these figures and a remembrance of the success we have already attained in protecting seamen, will so appeal to the newly awakened interest in the sailor, as to induce both the old and new friends of the Society so to contribute to our treasury that it may no longer be harrassed as at present. We greatly want help and we think the work deserves it.

NOTE.—Since the foregoing was written, Senate Bill No. 95, embracing the reforms above outlined, has been adopted by the House of Representatives and has been signed by the President. By its terms it will go into effect sixty days after its approval, or February 21st, 1899.

Annual Report of the Chaplain East River Station.

With gratitude to God, and thankfulness to all who have in any way helped, I report a very satisfactory state of affairs. The recent fearful work that death has been executing upon the great deep, ought solemnly and impressively to remind us of our duty to the men of the sea.

Working in the Floating Church of our Saviour, in the Mission House, with its cozy, homelike reading room, and at the "New Sailors' Home," we have been striving to bring comfort and cheer into the lives of men, who are so often worn and weary; to help strengthen them for their conflicts; to be a Christian friend to seamen who are friendless and far from home; to care for and visit them when suffering from wounds and diseases; to protect them when oppressed; in other words, trying to answer the question "What would Jesus do?"

Two services have been held in the Church on Sunday throughout the year, and one on Friday evening. At the Mission House, on Tuesday evenings, the Women's Hope Club have met to plan and work for "Jack's" welfare. On Wednesdays, the Floating Church Temperance Society, with Mr. Montgomery as its president, has accomplished much good. One hundred and thirty-five have this year signed the pledge. Judging by the success of our social evening, it is very evident that "Jack Ashore" has certainly learned that on any Saturday night he will always find the Men's Hope Club, and a jolly crowd of companions, at 34 Pike Street.

He is very fond of the Hope Club coffee and tobacco, and good music. An invitation to come to Church, after such entertainment, results in a large percentage being present at the services next day. The Men's Club, assisted by the women once a month, is doing a splendid practical work. The Sunday School is smaller, but is still active under the superintendency of Mr. Watson.

Mr. Montgomery, although now superintendent of our Sailors' Home, is performing the duty of visiting the sailor boarding houses, and vessels, before all services, or meetings of any kind, extending to the seamen a hearty invitation.

Our work was noticeably affected this summer by the derangement of commercial operations, caused by the war, yet notwithstanding, results show as great success as last year.

Many interesting incidents have transpired, all giving ample proof of the good being wrought among the men who come to us. Certainly they would encourage those who might hear them, and perhaps arouse them to do something to help forward missionary work to seamen. We lack space for details.

What can you do? Come and see what we are doing. Send to 34 Pike Street reading matter in all languages—we use vast quantities. Help us to entertain on Saturday evenings. Clothing for destitute sailors will be most acceptable.

Surely all the prayer and toil and wealth expended in this work have not been in vain, if by and through its instrumentality one soul shall have been reached and turned from the error of its way.

The Chaplain is grateful to Mrs. J. H. Murphy, Mr. Benj. G. Watson, Miss E. L. Huntington, Miss Jennie Vanderbilt, the Women's Hope Club, and St. Andrew's Church, through Miss A. H. Wells, for presentations to the Church, and to Mrs. F. B. Robinson, the New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society, through Mr. James Pott, Miss A. H. Wells and friends, the Parochial Missionary Society of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Brooklyn, and the Guild of St. Stephen's Church, for donations for sailors.

He especially desires to express his appreciation of the many kindnesses shown him by Sister Eleanor, of Trinity Hospital, and her good co-workers, and their Christian care of the men committed by him to their charge.

Respectfully submitted,

ARCHIBALD R. MANSFIELD,

CHAPLAIN.

Advent, 1898.

Annual Report of the Chaplain North River Station.

This is a grateful record of much evident blessing from on High, on the great effort to make adequate spiritual provision for seamen of all nations, ashore and afloat.

On the events of the past twenty months there is clearly written, "Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."

As a consequence of the recent war between this country and Spain, a great field for the distribution of God's Word, the sending of comfort bags, the coming in close touch with our own Navy, has given us the opportunity we have long desired, and we have taken advantage of it to the best of our abilities.

Mrs. E. A. Gardner conceived the idea of supplying our warships with just what they needed. Noble-hearted friends came to her assistance. The New York Herald and the Associated Press took it up, and thousands of bags, medical supplies, delicacies, Bible prayer-books, testaments, and many cases of literature was sent to our men; and as one of the results, letters are written and received from our seamen from all parts of the world.

By the recognition of the officers, on all steamship lines, of the worth of our work, more than three hundred men have been shipped without cost to the men.

Special thanks are due to captains and officers for courtesy and kindness in allowing us access to their vessels, at all reasonable times, and for shipping destitute seamen at our request. My grateful thanks are due to personal friends and to all who have made possible the splendid success of this past year.

Respectfully submitted,

WALTER A. A. GARDNER,
CHAPLAIN.

Annual Report of the Chaplain Coenties Slip Station.

The out-door station has passed through another year of gratifying work. The falling off in the attendance at the Sunday services is the only discouraging feature of the work. It is however counterbalanced by the increased attendance at the Reading-room, Men's and Women's Social Clubs.

One encouraging aspect of our work is the effect the social gatherings have had upon our people. They thoroughly enjoy these weekly meetings, which are a great means of holding our scattered congregation together. These meetings form the only ground on which the boatmen and their families can come together, get acquainted, and so strengthen the ties of fellowship. Surely this is of some moment to these people, who, owing to their life and environment, are somewhat excluded from association with the community of which they form a part.

Much to the same purpose is the Reading-room. The past year surpassed the previous by far in the number of visits which have been made. It is very pleasing to find in this sphere of our labor, that the visitors not only make use of all the papers, periodicals and writing facilities which are supplied, but they evince a great deal of interest in sound reading, as shown by the way they have patronized the valuable and well assorted books of our library.

The Dorcas society is very effective in its purpose. More than sixty garments were made by the members last Winter, and were discreetly distributed among the more needy families of the boatmen.

The cold water fountain that was placed in the Mission-room by the Auxiliary Branch of the Church Temperance Society, was a source of refreshment to many thousands of hard-working, thirsty men last Summer. It is largely patronized not only by the men who visit the Reading-room, but also by the truckmen, longshoremen, and even the business men of the neighborhood.

The women interested in the work of the station organized a Sunday School last winter, for the benefit of the children who lived on the canal boats and barges in the slips. They did very effective work, and had a good attendance every Sunday afternoon.

Respectfully submitted,

ISAAC MAGUIRE,

Report of the Committee on The Sailors' Home.

This report of the Committee of the New Sailors' Home, No. 52 Market Street, includes all the matters of interest in its work since Easter 1897, when the time for holding the annual meeting was changed to December.

In looking for a Superintendent, your committee decided that Daniel Montgomery would be an excellent man for the place as he had been a sailor; and had been employed by the Society for the last twenty-one years as colporteur, and was well known to many members of the Board. We therefore placed him in charge. In this new position, Mr. Montgomery found many difficulties to contend with. When the shipping agents, and boarding house keepers learned that the Home was shipping sailors without charging commission or blood money, there was a combination formed at once against it, a committee was appointed to watch every ship, to learn if any men were on board from the Home.

We have persevered, however, against all this opposition, until they have given up watching for our men. We have less difficulty in shipping men, and are much encouraged, as we have shipped nearly five hundred, besides fifteen who have entered the Navy, and none of whom have paid one cent of compensation for shipment, or blood money. Thus we have saved these men about three thousand dollars. The Home has been a great help in inducing men to attend the Chapel, as about two-thirds of them take an active part in the meetings.

Under this new management your committee is delighted with the improvement in the cleanliness, order, and in fact in everything which contributes to the comfort and home-like surroundings of the sailors who fully appreciate the new order of things, and have frequently expressed themselves to that effect.

Mr. Montgomery has also received many letters from Captains of vessels and seamen, who have been his guests, thanking him and this Society for all they have done for the sailors. Among the many letters received, I have only space for one quotation.—The captain of the schooner "Nimrod" writes in part as follows: "The Home under your dispensation has been the first glimpse of home life I have had for many a long year, and until now I have always been looked upon as a marketable commodity and have felt it, but with you I have been treated as one of your own, and have felt the contrast." Again he writes, "When next you refer to me it will be as a standing monument of the home influence of the New Sailors' Home."

Your committee have spent much time during the past six months in protecting the Home from injury, caused by the removal of the adjoining building, No. 50 Market Street, and building a new structure, by reason of which we have incurred an outlay of some three hundred and twenty-five dollars, fifty of which we hope to recover from the owners. The burial plot belonging to the Mission at the Evergreen Cemetery has been put in order and the iron railing painted.
